THE INVASION.

LATEST CONCERNING THE REBEL MOVE

NOT CERTAIN THAT THEY HAVE RECROSSED THE RIVER.

It is improper to state what troops have left Washington on the track of the rebels, though we may not improperly mention that all have gone that can be properly spared just now.

Up to 10 a. m. to-day it was not ascertained here that the rebel army had crossed the river, though they had sent over most of their plunder. Many believe that it is not their purpose to leave without giving us battle, and that they have merely withdrawn to a convenient and strong position to that end.

The information accumulated here up to this time strengthens the conclusion that their force was thirty-five thousand strong, of all

They entered Maryland with forty-four pieces of cannon. Many of their troops were dismounted cavalrymen. These they mounted, until they are believed to have 8,000 men on horseback at this time.

The secessionists were the greatest sufferers from loss of horse flesh; as, fancying that that 'fellow-feeling which makes men wondrous kind" would prevent the rebels from despoiling them, they neglected to run off their horses and cattle in advance of the approach of the rebel plunderers, which the Union men generally took the precaution to do.

We are yet without intelligence of the progress of the pursuit, which should be managed with due caution, in view of the large force the enemy doubtless has.

Important from the West.

FORREST ROUTED AND KILLED. SHERMAN WITHIN SIX MILES OF ATLANTA

Telegraphic comm unication with the north and west was re-established last evening, and the Government had the use of the only wire put in working order from hence to Baltimore We learn that among the dispatches received ere dark, was one from Memphis, stating that Gen. Andrew Jackson Smith had met and completely routed the rebel force under Forrest, and that Forrest himself was killed in the en-Means are doubtless being taken to-day to verify the correctness of this information, which did not reach Memphis in the shape of an official account or report.

Another dispatch, received last evening, announces the good news that Sherman's army was then within six miles of Atlanta.

GEN. TYLER NOT A PRISONER.

On what we deemed good authority, we stated in our extra on last Sunday that General Tyler was not wounded or captured in the fighting on Saturday at the Monocacy. Our information proves to have been correct, as Gen. T. yesterday arrived safely in Baltimore.

THE RAILROAD. Yesterday morning several gentlemen went over the road to Baltimore on a hand-car, reaching there about 4 o'clock. Mr. Koontz, the agent, and Mr. Walker, passenger agent, during the afternoon made a trip through, reaching Baltimore about 4% o'clock, and found the track undisturbed except by some lumber across it near Beltsville and three cross-ties burned.

Engine 27 with 4 cars left Baltimore about o'clock, and reached here in an hour and twenty minutes, bringing in 150 soldiers of the 5th corps, from the Relay House.

DEATH OF ANOTHER BRAVE CHIPPEWA. Some days ago we gave the particulars of the death of a brave Chippewa chieftain of Burn-side's corps, who fell in one of the actions in Grant's advance upon Richmond, after having made many of the enemy bite the dust with his

Since then another brave officer of the same tribe has given his life for his country-Lieut. Garrett A. Graversat, company K, 1st Michigan Sharphooters. Lieut. Graversat was a young man of extraordinary attainments, and was highly esteemed as an officer and gentleman. He was a Chippewa of the Bear River band, and with his father, enlisted in the 1st Michigan Sharpshooters. His bravery and accomplishments endeared him to his comrades, and at theirunanimous request he was promoted to a lieutenancy. In the fight before Petersburg, June 18, he was in the trenches with his father, and had the misfortune to see his father shot dead by his side. He bore the body of his parent from the trench to a safe spot, where, weeping bitterly, he dug a grave in the sand with an old tin pan, and buried him. This done, the devoted son dried his tears and returned to the battle. His rifle told with terrible precision among the rebel officers, until he fell bimself, wounded badly in the arm. Lieut. G. was brought to Washington, where his arm was amputated at the shoulder, which resulted in his death. His body was embalmed by Dr. Thos. Holmes, and taken in charge by Hon. John F. Driggs, who had it deposited in Congressional Cemetery to await the order of the tribe. Lieut. G. was but twenty-seven years of age; was highly educated, being master of several modern languages, beside the Chippewa tongue; a fine portrait and landscape painter, and a thorough musician. The tidings of his death will be received with much regret by his red brothers at Bear River.

Later from the Rebel Retreat.

THEY CROSS THE RIVER OPPOSITE POOLS-VILLE AND AT SENECA.

THEIR ADVANCE MOVING THROUGH LOU-DON COUNTY IN THE DIRECTION OF ASHBY'S GAP:

GENERAL GILMORE INJURED.

Our pursuing forces bivouacked last night in the vicinity of Offutt's Cross-Roads, Montgomery county. The rebels were crossing their main forces yesterday afternoon at Senaca and opposite Poolesville. Their advance was this morning along the roads in Loudon leading in the direction of Ashby's Gap. Major General Gilmore, we regret to learn, was this forenoon thrown from his horse, while at the head of the portion of the 19th corps now following up the rebels in our front. His ankle was so severely injured as that he will not be fit for service again for some days. In the meanwhile General Emory takes his

The rebel forces that were around the northwest side of this city have all disappeared, and we learn that there were none reported during yesterday within twenty miles of the city Notwithstanding this state of affairs, General Ord has not relaxed his endeavors to place the city in a proper state of defense, and at the time we write, arrangements have been so thoroughly completed that the military authorities felt fully able to repelyany assault that might be attempted, at any time, by the rebels.

After the authorities of Frederick paid over the $200,000 demanded of them by Gen'l Early, that officer, with his forces, proceeded towards Washington and the lower fords of the Potomac, viz: Edwards's and Nolan's ferries. All the government buildings in Frederick were burned except the hospitals.

The situation in Western Maryland yesterday evening was as follows:—There was no rebels on the north side of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The Federal troops hold the railroad from Monocacy to Cumberland. Martinsburg, Frederick, Hagerstown, Harper's Ferry, the South Mountain, &c., are all now occupied by Federal troops The railroad between Ellicott's Mills and the Monocacy was reported last evening to be clear of rebel troops, so that the entire line of the Baltimore and Obio Railroad is again in possession of the company.

The Monocacy bridge was but slightly damaged. All the other damage to the road will be speedily repaired, and the telegraph lines be in working order in a few days. The various telegraph lines between this city and the North are all again in working order. The Baltimore, Philadelphia and Wilmington Railroad will be in working order to-day.

The Western Maryland Railroad Company are now running their trains on regular time. Large working forces are engaged repairing the damage to the Northern Central Railroad, and the road, it was thought, would be in running condition in a few days. The scene at the military headquarters in this city yesterday morning on the arrival of Brig. Gen. E. B. Tyler, who commands the first separate brigade of the eighth army corps, and who was reported to have been either killed or captured in the action at Monocacy Junction on Saturday last, was certainly very flattering to that officer. Accompanying the General were Capt. F. I. D. Webb and Lieut. Goldsborough, of his staff, both of whom were with the General since the battle. The facts connected with his escape are substantially as

On Saturday, after our troops had retired from the Monocacy bridge, Gen. Tyler and his staff made a stand on the hill on the east side of the bride, but were not there long before they discovered themselves to be surrounded by the rebels. The General and his party succeeded in making their escape on the north side, closely pursued by the enemy, who fired upon them repeatedly, killing one of the General's orderlies-a German, whose name we could not ascertain. To this fact the General attributes his escape, as, when the soldier fell from his saddle in the road, the pursuers stopped to see who it was, and to inquire if Gen. Tyler was not of the party, etc. During this time the General nad reached a clump of woods, and the three officers secreted themselves from their pursuers. A negro who was endeavoring to make his escape from the rebel lines discovered them, and pointed out the way to the house of a well known and patriotic citizen of Frederick county, whose family was unremitting in their attentions to the fugitives, concealing them until Tuesday, when they took their departure for Frederick, which they reached ear-

The appearance of General Tyler in the streets of Frederick created the greatest surprise. The General left Frederick on Tuesday. He came down the Frederick road as far as Catonsville, and from thence to the Relay House. On the road down they were informed that a very strong force of Bradley Johnson's cavalry command had crossed the road at Carroll's Manor, proceeding south. General Tyler, with his staff, left this city last evening to resume the command at the Relay House.

Dr. Johnson, the medical director at Frederick, arrived at military headquarters yester-day, and gives the following as the results of the battle of Monocacy: Union loss.—Killed and left on the field, 121; wounded and taken to hospital, 190; prisoners taken, 400—total. 711. Rebel Loss.-Killed, near 300; wounded and n hospital at Frederick, now in our possession, The Doctor states that the rebels suffered badly in officers killed and wounded. It was reported yesterday that Major Gen. Franklin had effected his escape from Gilmor's cavalry, Mr. J. Miller, jr., vice president of the fourth ward league, whose company are on duty on the western suburbs, communicates the following statement in regard to the reported escape of Gen. F .: "Harry Gilmor, with a party of cavalry, numbering about 150, and having with them Major General Franklin and three officers of his staff as prisoners, encamped at a late hour on Monday night on Oliver's farm, between Randalstown and Reisterstown. Gen. Franklin was in custody of Capt. Nicholas Owings, of Baltimore county, from whom he succeeded in making his escape at an early hour on Tuesday morning. The force of Gilmor remained all day in the neighborhood, scouring the bushes and woods, and searching all the houses and barns, in the hope of being able to recapture him. This was the statement they made to the people in the vicinity, and the search was continued until five o'clock on Tuesday evening, when they left on their way to the vicinity of Washington, crossing the Baltimore and Ohio railroad near Elysville during last night." They also had with them three officers of Gen. Franklin's staff. These they took away with them, they not having bean able to escape with their commander.

At last accounts nothing was definitely known in this city as to the whereabouts of Gen. Franklin, but it was the impression of persons residing in the neighborhood that he really had escaped. The rumors in regard to the capture of Annapolis yesterday morning was unfounded. Telegraph communication was opened during the day with that place, via Annapolis Junction .- Bastimore Sun, 14th.

Movements of Gen. Hunter's Command. PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—The New York Herald's Special from Headquarters Department of Western Virginia, on the 11th instant, says: Gen. Sullivan's division has occupied Martinsburg without opposition, and restored railroad communications, which are now open thence to Wheeling. Gen. Howe had assumed command at Harper's Ferry, relieving Gen. Sigel. Gen. Hunter's forces are very active. It is believed that the total rebel force operating in Maryland is 30,000.

The Herald's Hagerstown special of the 12th reports heavy firing for several hours yester-day in the neighborhood of Westminster, and a severe eavalry engagement is indirectly re-ported. General Hunter's command is on hand. Colonel Sullivan is in command at Martinsburg. There is no rebel force west of South Mountain, and the people are returning home.

FROM GEN. SHERMAN'S ARMY. Capture of 2,000 Prisoners. [From the Nashville Times, 7th.] We have just received the following note from Gen. Webster: WEDNESDAY EVENING, July 6-10 p. m.— Mr. Mercer: I have just received a telegram from Gen. Sherman, saying "our army rests its wings on the Chattahoochie, above and be-low the bridge. The main rebel army is across; only one corps, Hardee's, remains on this side, occupying the tete du pont.

The weather is very bad. We have driven the enemy from the strong positions at Kenesaw and Smyrna, and camp five miles south of Marietta. We have taken about 2,000 prisoners. Our pickets are on the river bank at Price's Perry and at the mouth of the Nick-Respectfully.

J. D. WEBSTEE, Brigadier General.

5 O'CLOCK P. M.

THE REBEL REAR GUARD CROSSING THE RIVER AT POOLESVILLE.

They are Harassed by our Cavalry and Light Artillery—The Reported Battle at Rockville a Canard.

We learn from a gentleman who left Rock ville this morning and arrived here about one o'clock, that the rebel rear guard passed through Rockville last night at ten o'clock. They were driving before them several thousand head of cattle and a large number of horses. They did not appear to have many prisoners.

A pursuing Union force passed through after them half an hour afterwards.

Our cavalry has been harassing and annoying the Rebel rear considerably, but no engagement had taken place. The Rebel rear guard took the Poolesville road, and this morning early cannonading was heard about Seneca, the supposition being that our artillery was annoying them while cros-

THE REBEL INVERSION. To go out 7th street road was the correct thing vesterday. Supposing you couldn't afford a horse-with flour at $25 per barrel-there were the street cars to the Boundary, thence on foot. We went out. It is proper we see by our morning cotemporaries, to note progress by the yard in going out the 7th street road. Thus we. At the Boundary our progress was barred by a difficulty in getting lager. There was no getting to the front without lager and no lager to be had. There were bars in plenty, (7th street north is lined with them,) and lager in plenty, but "not a drop to drink,"—military orders against it. The barkeepers looked sorry ders against it. The bar-keepers looked sorry and we looked sorry. Then we saw some soldiers coming from the rear entrance of a restaurant wiping their mouths. We went in and came out wiping our mouth. Bar-keeper there evidently hadn't heard the order. Then we walked up a hill, Something smelt bad. We thought it was dead rebels. It proved to be Bell's slaughter-house. At the right, on the brow of the hill, were some burnt timbers in ruins-invasion ruins doubtless. We got out our note book. A New York "Special" was ahead of us. He had dismounted from his horse; he was down upon his knees and was examining the relics through his eye-glass. Some objects there looked like the bones of a human being. This human be-ing had perished in the flames. This was the horrors of war. We asked an 8th Illineis cavalryman about it. He thought the bones were beef bones. The ruins were those of a shed burned by accident a year or more ago. The Special put up his eye-glass. We put up our note book, firmly resolved to draw it no more until there was something to note.

Fort Stevens and Outside.

Passing Fort Stevens there were indications of war in earnest. Gaunt chimney stacks standing amid smoking ruins, to the right a peach orchard just felled (after the enemy were gone,) to the left, some distance away, the blaze of a conflagration, where the fire from a building fired by the Confederates in leaving had spread through the underbrush enveloping a weiling house. The fire was yet smouldering in the Lay house ruins, as shown by a thin spiral of smoke rising over a clump of shrubbery. It is difficult to realize that not 24 hours ago the rebels were hiding in this house with such impudent temerity directly under the guns of our fortifications.

ing positions behind knolls, bushes, and trees, within three hundred yards of Fort Stevens. Here it was that the veterans of the 6th corps, spreading themselves out in fan-form line of skirmishers, advanced with the audacity gained from previous baptism in fire, across the open field, directly under the deadly rebel fire from those leafy coverts. On they advanced, sweep ing past the Lay house on the right, and throw. ing up rifle-pits at once, which they held through the night, and on the left pushing up to the white fence of the Lay house, or rather its blazing ruins, when the rebels sent two reinforcing brigades, pushing our skirmishers back on that side.

It was a bit of display on their part of a bold front as at that very hour, 7 o'clock Tuesday night, the main portion of their force were steal ing away towards the fords of the Potomac. They left in the fields some 90 of their dead, and a detail of contrabands sent out to bury them, came marching in at sunset bearing tro-phies of rebel guns, &c. One rebel was found buried so hastily by his comrades in their exit. that the feet were sticking out of the ground. In hospital tents beyond the third tollgate the rebels left sixty-three of their wounded, including eleven officers, none of them being above the rank of captain. With these wound. ed they left a surgeon, two assistant surgeons, twelve nurses (soldiers) and a chaplain. These wounded were looked after yesterday by Dr. Waters, of this city, Hospital Inspector, and they are to be removed to Lincoln Hospital.

The rebel General Holmes was severely wounded at the battle of Monocacy on Saturday, and was brought with them by the rebels. He was not doing well when the rebels left, and it was not practicable to remove him. It is believed that he has been left concealed at the house of some rebel sympathizer. Strict search will be made for him. The house of Francis P. Blair was occupied as headquarters by Gen. Breckinridge, and was not injured. It has been stated by a morning cotemporary that the private papers of Mr. Blair were spared by the rebels. This is a mistake. Mr. Blair's house was thoroughly ransacked, all drawers, bureaus, writing cases, &c., being forced open and their contents not carried off were thrown about the house. Mr. Blair's papers, and even the letters of the ladies of the family, were thus treated. It is not known what portion of Mr. Blair's papers were carried off, but as they were evidently all handled, it is presumed that such as bore on public affairs were stolen, as was all the plate, silver ware, &c., in the A valuable picture at the Blair house was cut from the frame and carried away by some rebel vandal. The house of Montgomery Blair, with all its valuable furniture, was burned by the rebels.

The Rev. Mr. Macneheimer occupied the Morrison house, and was obliged to leave a sick bed in fleeing from the rebels. He loses all his furniture, clerical robes, plate, library of 800 volumes, &c., &c.
The story that Mr. F. P. Blair was at his residence while the rebels were there is untrue. Reports brought down the road by farmers all go to show that the rebel sympathizers in Maryland were the principal sufferers by the rebel raid. Not only were their horses and cattle taken by the raiders for "the good of the cause," but they were impressed themselves into the Confederate service. It struck us yesterday in visiting the fortifications north of the city that they, or rather their surroundings, are not quite what they should be. The abattis in front of sone of them, for instance, seems to be old and rotten, and we noticed paths made through it by lazy soldiers to avoid a long detour to the gate en trance; which paths could be used by an enemy as well. It seems strange, too, that we had no exterior line of defenses to prevent the enemy from getting so close up to the fort that they could pick off our men from its walls with impunity. As we understand it, the defenses of Richmond are of a very different character, having one line of defenses within another, of such a character that the fate of the city does not depend upon the capture of a single line of them. The
